It was a game of few scores and took the best part of two hours to complete. Dalton won on a judge's score of 17-15. O'Neill won the third set on a scores of 24-22. O'Neill won the second set 23-15 and won the first set 21-9. The score was 20-21 after 1 hour 9 minutes when a break of 30-15 for O'Neill allowed it to be level at 1-1. The crowd couldn't have been bigger and gave Dalton a generous ovation as he won the match with a score of 17-15.

Earlier in the day, the ladies singles was won by Valerie Masterson of Westport. She beat a strong field of great players. Masterson beat Bríd Johnston of Athenry by a score of 7-6, 5-7, 5-7. The men's singles was won by Padraig Barry of Athlone. He beat Stephen Maloney of Gleann Riabhach by a score of 4-0, 3-6, 5-4. The European Union today said that the Peruvian government has now passed legislation to prevent bribery of officials. EU lawmakers had welcomed the new law as it had been welcomed by Peru's International Labour Organization and civil society organisations. Peru joins 19 other European countries who have new anti-bribery legislation in force:

Field of the Invention This invention relates to water purification apparatus and, more particularly, to a portable water purifying apparatus utilizing ozone to destroy bacteria, viruses, and other disease causing particles. 2. Prior Art Several methods and devices for purifying water are known. Most known devices utilize chemical agents for destroying bacteria, viruses, and other disease causing particles in drinking water. These known devices are, however, intended to be used only in residences and in medical facilities and are not typically intended for use in facilities such as office buildings, factories, schools, or even military camps. These devices also do not provide a mechanism for storing water that has been filtered. U.S. Pat. No. 5,817,345, issued to Swisher on Oct. 6, 1998, describes a water purification system having a plurality of water purification cartridges. The cartridges may include a filter element and, to promote cleaning, the cartridges may be periodically washed. Additionally, a device is described that sprays ozone into a main flow path. U.S. Pat. No. 4,094,762, issued to Pals et al. on Jun. 13, 1978, describes a combination water treatment and sterilizing apparatus. The apparatus includes a water treatment cartridge having a perforated bottom wall. A liquid-permeable top wall of the cartridge includes a tubular wall having a liquid-permeable central portion and liquid-impermeable peripheral portion. A treatment agent is disposed in the interior of the cartridge and at least one ultraviolet tube is positioned in the central portion of the tubular wall. The ultraviolet light is activated by alternating a current of electric power through the light source which is periodically interrupted. U.S. Pat. No. 4,374,493, issued
